EDGAR A. FOX DEAD.

The Best Known Sunday School Man in the State—An Expert Worker.

Mr. E. A. Fox, general secretary of the Kentucky Sunday School Association and President of the International Sunday School Secretaries' Association, died at his home in Louisville last Sunday morning.

Nearly six weeks ago he was taken suddenly ill at his office in the Louisville Trust Company building. He was taken in a carriage to his home and a physician was summoned. Mr. Fox grew steadily worse, and three weeks ago a consultation of physicians was held. Last week hope was practically abandoned and Mr. Fox's elder son, Edgar L. Fox, was called home from Daville, where he is a student. All the members of the family were at the bedside when he died.

Since his removal to Louisville, eleven years ago, Mr. Fox had been connected with the State Sunday School work in Louisville. In that time he had his office in that city, but his work as general secretary was such that much of his time was spent in traveling about the State.

Three years ago Mr. Fox was a delegate to the International Sunday School Convention in Rome, Italy. While he was abroad he traveled extensively through Europe and took pictures for stockton views. Upon his return to the United States he prepared a series of lectures and used the views in connection with delivering them.

Mr. Fox was known throughout the country as a Christian religious worker. His work was of such an exceptionally high character that it commanded the attention and admiration of the International Sunday School workers. Mr. Fox was an expert high line of labor, and he had a wonderful amount of initiative, power and creative and executive ability. He was the author of several books on Sunday School work, and his texts on the subject are regarded as standards. Mr. Fox was a member of the First Methodist church, and many of his unnumbered and unobtrusive charities have made the hearts of the recipients glad.

Mr. Fox was well known in this county, where he has done a wonderful work for the Sunday School. His death has saddened the hearts of his many co-workers in the Sunday School. His remains were buried in Cave Hill Cemetery Monday.

$25,000 That is the Size of The Company Just Organized in This Town.

They Are Going After Gas And Oil in Large Quantities.

LOOKS GOOD FOR CLOVERPORT.

The Kentucky-Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Company, of Cloverport, has just been incorporated under the laws of Kentucky with a capital of $25,000. This is the company which has recently purchased the local gas plant and which is now engaged in re-equipping the plant. They have over 10,000 acres of land under lease for oil and gas, lying in and around Cloverport and it is their intention to drill several wells this summer both for gas and oil.

Mr. Otto G. Tague, President of the Company, in talking with a representative of the News yesterday said that the company was ordered new casing for the well at the mill which now has a pressure of over 70 pounds and as soon as this casing is put in place and the well is in position they would be in position to serve gas to practically the entire city, at least the portion of which is now piped, and that they expected to lay pipe lines to the hill and other portions of the city this summer and drill new wells so that by next winter Cloverport will undoubtedly be enjoying the old time luxury of natural gas.

Mr. Tague further stated that the main object of the company is to develop enough gas to enable them to pipe it to Owensboro and way points, including Hawesville, Cannelton, Tell City, Lewisport and Rockport; that the only question that was yet to be solved is whether the supply of gas is sufficient to warrant this investment, but that he thought that there is yet to be found the main deposit of gas and that before the summer far advanced his company will have developed one of the greatest gas fields in the entire country. In proof of this he called attention to the long life of the wells which have been drilled and taken care of and stated that he thought the large body of undrilled territory which his company has under lease will provide gas in enormous quantities.

The new company will also make some deep drillings in order that the lower strata may be tested for oil. Both Mr. Tague and his father, Mr. James Tague, who is associated with him, are oil men of many years experience and they both stated with great earnestness that they believe an oil field is inevitable. Mr. Tague called attention to the fact that the latest oil field to be developed in this vicinity is in Owensboro, Ind., and that the pool and that at Princeton, Ind., are the only important extensions of the great Illinois oil fields ever discovered and that Cloverport is only 42 miles from the Oakland City pool and in a direct line with it.

It goes without saying that we wish for the new company all the good luck and success possible for we know that something of this kind would be the greatest thing that could happen to Cloverport and that the discovery of oil would make our city the most important in this section of the country. On the other hand the development of what we know is here—the gas field—will do a great deal to help boost the town for a plentiful supply of natural gas we should be in position to get some new manufacturing industries and to make our city more attractive for all concerned.

NOVELTY FOR A BAZAAR

A Fruit and Vegetable Stand of the Typical Irish Kind.

OLD APPLE WOMAN PRESIDES

The Stand is Stocked With Real, Imitation and Surprise Wares—The Idea Partakes Somewhat of the Nature of a Grab Bag.

If you are planning a fair for some favorite charity, why not try a novelty fruit and vegetable stand, presided over by an old apple woman of the typical Irish kind? One of the girls, of course, impersonates the apple woman, and she should be a girl who has some ability at brogue and repartee.

For a costume she should wear a voluminous, check-plumaged skirt and waist, a small maid's head adorned round starched white cap or a straw poke bonnet. A clay pipe in the mouth will add much of realism to the make-up, and a big red cotton umbrella is a most picturesque addition to the outfit. The open umbrella held over the apple woman's head being a fine background for a pretty face.

For the stand a regular pushcart is the best thing and should be hired or borrowed. But if this is not practicable a good imitation may be made of a little kitchen table, rather low, with a little rim and a couple of inches high standing up all around the edge. The whole stand should, to be really correct, be painted green.

The stand must be supplied with real fruit and "surprise fruit" and imitation fruit. It partakes somewhat of the nature of a grab bag. Ordinary brown paper bags should be used to wrap the purchases.

As to the articles to be sold, the plan best followed would be to divide the stand into three sections, one for real fruit and nuts and candies, one for imitations and one for the "surprises." The imitations are easily contrived. Balls of orange colored string are to be piled up like oranges, banana-shaped pineapples of yellow silk are made, stuffed with wool wadding (cotton wadding will do); empty cushions in the form of strawberries and radishes, tomato and cucumber pineapples and thimble holders made of English walnut shells, opened, the meat taken out and tiny holes bored through the shells by a roller ball pin, a narrow ribbon being slipped through these holes to tie the halves of the shell together. These have cured thousands of women who are the real ones, a stick with a placard at the top announcing the price of each variety.

PERFECT HER ONLY CHANCE

Was Cured By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Adrian, Ga.—"I suffered untold misery from a female weakness and disease, and I could not stand more than a minute at a time. My doctor said an operation was the only chance I had, and I dreaded it almost as much as death. One day I was reading how other women had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and decided to try it. Before I had taken one bottle it was better, and now I am completely cured."—LENA V. HENRY, Route No. 8, Adrian, Ga.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, enduring four-fifths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ailments. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, irregularities, periodic pain, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write Mrs. J. C. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

For the "surprises" there are many devices. An orange may be quickly made of the proper shade of enamel. Cut in four places the shape of a quarter of an orange and stick them together, or it may be even more simply made, though with a less lifelike look, by cutting a circle of nine or ten inches diameter and drawing up the edge with a needle and thread, run in long stitches about half an inch from edge to edge.

Each of these oranges will contain some little thing, such as would be put in a grab bag. The articles, a doll, a china dog, a little dish, some candies, or whatever may be found available, should be wrapped in tissue paper and then in cotton batting in a ball and stuffed inside the oranges.

A Japanese Novelty. It is a large plan to make the men and girls who will go to the dinner or play a game together according to a similarity of tastes.

For example, the hostess makes out a list of modern novelties, typewriting each name on two separate slips. Each set of slips is dropped into a different basket. The girls, in pairs, pick up the slips, and each person selects his favorite author.

Those who agree in liking the same one are partners. The names of novels and the titles of popular songs are written on a bill in the same way.

A Thrilling Rescue

How Bert R. Leach, of Chevy, Wash., was saved from a frightful death is a story to thrill the world. "A hard cold," he writes, "brought on a desperate lung trouble that baffled an expert doctor here. Then I paid $10 to have a visit to a lung specialist in Spokane, Wash., who did not say I was cured, but to California, without benefit. At last I used Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me and now I am as well as ever." For Lung Trouble, Bronchitis, Coughs and colds, Dr. King's New Discovery is the supreme remedy. 50 cents and $1.00. Bottle free. Guaranteed by Severs Drug Co.

ROYAL MAIDS.

When They Wish to Marry They Must Do the Preparing.

When a reigning queen is to be married she must be the one to broach the subject first to her future consort. The same rule holds good with regard to all royal ladies who marry commoners.

The late Queen Victoria has told how she managed to "put the question" to Prince Albert—how she first showed him Windsor and its beauties and the distant landscape and then said, "All this may be yours." The queen of Holland, on the like occasion simply sent a sprig of white heather, begging Prince Henry to look out its meaning in a book of flowers and their meanings. The Duchess of Argyll took the following means of proposing to the Marquis of Lorne: She was about to attend a state ball and gave it out that she would choose as her partner for the first dance the man she intended to honor. She selected the marquis, who subsequently became her husband. But perhaps the most interesting of all ways chosen was that of the Duchess of Fife. She took the earl, as he then was, to a drawer and showed him its contents. "I have to see a number of trifles he had given her at different times, including sprigs of several kinds of flowers, new dials, he had picked for her of various kinds. He was much impressed at the sight, nor did it require words on her part to make her meaning plain—London Answers.

Sometimes you may be told that there are other things just as good as DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills. That isn't so. Nothing made as good as DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills for any ailment of the kidneys or bladder, which always result in weak back, backache, rheumatism, pains, rheumatism and urinary disorders. A trial of DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills is sufficient to convince you how good they are. Send your name to E. G. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, for a free trial box. They are sold here by all druggists.

Domestic Economy.

"Nora, was that the coal man I saw making love to you yesterday evening?"

"Yes, ma'am, but I 'ope, ma'am."

"Does he love you very much, Nora?"

"E says 'e does, ma'am."

"Yes, ma'am."

"Well, you tell him that unless he gives us better velvet than he has, I will be sure to get it somewhere."—London Illustrated Times.

Once Richer Than London, Its Chief Wealth Now Is Salt.

Old Cadiz, De Anichis said, "It is best described by writing the word 'white' with a white pencil on blue paper." Under the moonlight sun, seen from the lofty Torre de Vigia, the medieval watchtower in the center of the city, its buildings are dazzling and almost entirely enclosed by the blue sea. Long, narrow isthmus like the stem of a pile leads from San Fernando, on the mainland. Cadiz rests on the bow of a ship, and the pure white masonry of the city is without color, though 3,000 years old.

Americans may justly regard this "second place with comparison," because it grew to greatness by its commerce with the new world—while Spain ruined the Americas—and then fell away into decay on the loss of the western possessions.

It was great before Rome was founded. And as late as 1770 it was wealthier than London. Commerce has been its life. Today its chief business is the production of salt for export. This humble staple, evaporated in countless shallow lagoons in wide spreading marshes, still keeps Cadiz in touch with the new world, as most of the salt is shipped to South America.

The natives pronounce Cadiz with "sil" and "m" very broad—"Ca-dil." That has always been its name, with slight variations. Its Phoenician and Tyrian founders called it Gadir, a castle of fastness. The Romans called it Gades. The Arabs had it Kadiz—Detroit News-Tribune.

Women Who Are Envious.

Those attractive women who are lovely in face, form and temper are the envy of many, who might be like them. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Consumption or Kidney poisons show in blotches, skin eruptions and a flushed complexion. For all such, Electric Bitten wonder. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood, give character, nerves, bright eyes, pure breast, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion. Many charming women owe their health and beauty to them. 50c at Severs Drug Co.

His Little Joke.

It was just two years after their wedding.

"George," she said romantically as she gazed at the fantastic pictures the red coals formed, "do you remember our courtship?"

George laughed tensely.

"No, my dear. I do not."

She looked up with a hurt expression.

"George, do you mean to sit there and say you do not remember our courtship days? Why, I am shocked at your callousness."

"No, dear; I do not remember our courtship days because only night watchmen have to do their courting in the night."

"I can not get any sleep the longer I am courting you, and they were delightful, pet."

But she said he was too horrid for anything.—Chicago News.

Delaware's Circular Boundary.

The northern boundary of Delaware is circular because the charter given to Penn states that Pennsylvania was to be "bounded on the east by the Delaware river from twelve miles distant north of Newcastle town to the three and fourth degree of north latitude" and that the southern boundary was to be "in a circle drawn at twelve miles distant from the town of Newcastle northward and westward until the fortieth degree of north latitude and then by a straight line westward." This makes a circular boundary for northern Delaware unavoidable, and the facts above set forth explain a geographical curiosity that has puzzled many students.

Genuine Turkish "Female Pills"

PRESERVED GINGER.

Some Ways of Using This East Indian Sweet.

Preserved ginger is one of those delicacies which might often be used for culinary purposes than for eating. There are many delightful dishes in connection with which it may suitably be employed, while numerous others into the composition of which it does not actually enter, in itself serves as a somewhat insipid nature, are greatly enhanced in flavor by being served with a dash of preserved ginger or with a ginger flavored sauce. Ginger junket is one of these dishes, and a mighty easy and dainty little dessert it is, to be sure.

GINGER APPLE.

To make the junket jelly warm a pint of new milk, taking care that it does not get really hot. Blood heat is sufficient. Sweeten to taste, a teaspoonful of powdered sugar being enough for most people, and sprinkle in a pinch of ground ginger. On removing from the fire add a teaspoonful of rennet. Pour into custard cups or into a large glass dish. When firm garnish the top with a few slices of preserved ginger, and with it send to table a dish of the same. A little "ginger" may be introduced into a plain pudding by using the following sauce. Beat the whites of one or two eggs to a very stiff froth and add a gill of whipped cream, a tablespoonful of chopped ginger and a sufficient quantity of the sirup to flavor strongly. Ginger apples, too, are delicious to serve for luncheon or Sunday evening supper. To make them pare and core some good apples and fill the cavity left in the center of each apple with a spoonful of chopped preserved ginger. Stand them in a deep-dish and pour over them a strup, either of sugar and water flavored with lemon and with a piece of green ginger cooked in it, or if there is enough of the ginger sirup, this may be used with the addition of a little water. Bake till soft and transparent, but not broken, heating occasionally with the sirup. Serve hot or cold with a little whipped cream garnished with pieces of ginger.

WHEN WOMEN REGISTER.

A Hotel Clerk Explains Why a Blotter Is Necessary.

"Hotel clerks get to be great observers of human nature," said an old hotel "blotter." "During the many hours out of each day that I spend writing this blotter, I have learned many tricks of their trade which go to prove my statement.

In fact, this clerk here has a peculiar trick of his own, which has been known to no observer he is. If you watch him at work you will find whenever a woman is registering he holds a blotter so as to hide the other names on the page. At first when I noticed it I thought that he was merely holding the blotter in readiness to use it on the newly written name, but when I found that he did it only when a woman was registering my curiosity got the better of me, and I asked the reason.

"Why," said he, "women are the most nervous creatures in the world. I hold the blotter out to show that I am not watching them write their names and at the same time to keep them from trying to excel the other guests on the page. If they noticed that I was watching them closely, it is a safe bet that they would get nervous and make an awful botch of their signature. I never do it for any other reason. If they saw a particularly pretty signature on the next line the clerks are that they would try to improve upon it by a do-or-two, which generally means a choice blot to be scratched out by yours truly."

"I decided to test his theory by looking over a woman's shoulder while she registered. The result was just what he said it would be."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Trouble Makers Quoted.

Gratna Green.

Gratna Green is reported in Scotland, just "over the border," where marriages used to be performed according to the law of Scotland. The ceremony was binding performance by a layman in the simplest form, when, being registered, the parties, in the presence of witnesses, were declared man and wife. The first person who introduced the strange unions was George Scott, who began "his sulcified ministry" about the year 1750.

LEPROSY.

After One Severe Disease May Lie — Dementia For Years.

It is a fact better known to the leper who lies in hiding alone. Such a leper is a lonely outcast, living in constant dread of discovery and a sure, sure rotting away. The action of leprosy is not steady. It lays hold of its victim, commits a ravage and then lies dormant for an indeterminate period. It may not commit another ravage for five years or ten years or forty years, and the patient may enjoy untroubled good health. Rarely, however, do these first ravages cease of themselves. The skilled surgeon is required, and the skilled surgeon cannot be called in for the leper who is in hiding. For instance, the first ravage may take the form of a perforating ulcer in the sole of the foot. When the bone is reached necrosis sets in. If the leper is in hiding he cannot be operated upon, the necrosis will continue to eat its way up the bone of the leg, and in a brief and horrible time that leper will die of gangrene or some other terrible complication. On the other hand, if that same leper in Mott's hospital will operate upon the foot, remove the ulcer, cleanse the bone and put a complete stop to that particular ravage of the disease. A month after the operation the leper will be out riding on horseback, running foot races, swimming in the breakers or climbing the rocky sides of the valleys for mountain apples. And, as has been stated before, the disease, lying dormant, may not again attack him for five, ten or forty years.—Jack London in Contemporary Review.

"Good news travels fast," and the thousands of bad back sufferers in Cloverport are glad to learn that prompt relief is within their reach. Many a lame, weak and aching back is bad no more, thanks to Dean's Kidney Pills. Thousands upon thousands of people are telling the good news of their experience with the Old Quaker Remedy. Here is an example worth reading:

Mrs. Chas. Eganman, Central Ave., Elizabethtown, Ky., says: "On April 8, 1905, my husband recommended Dean's Kidney Pills in my behalf stating that they had been of great value to me in removing a pain from my back and other difficulties arising from disordered kidneys. I can now add that during the four years which have since elapsed, I have used the remedy on several occasions when suffering from acute attacks of backache and it has never failed to help me. A number of persons seeing my statement in the paper, have called upon me and I have always told them that Dean's Kidney Pills are an excellent remedy."

WHAT MRS. GILMAN SAYS.

The Average Woman is "Petty" in Daily Life.

I read an article by Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, entitled "Woman the Enemy," and a woman recently who had been in the household since a New York daily. Mrs. Gilman is always standing up for woman and sincerity so; but, as in this article, she often cries down the "house service" and puts the wider out in the world life above it. She says:

"The average woman in daily life is petty and personal to the last degree. Yes, and what is her daily life? Does it involve the consideration of large affairs, the broadening complex of our world? Hardly. It consists in an endless repetition of the smallest sort of duties, in the narrowest personal relation. The universal profession of women, house service, is accountable for her pettiness."

What would become of our homes if all the women could be fortunate (b) in the world? It is a very important thing for the housekeeper, and it devotes upon her to allow her work to tyrannize over her and to keep the door of pettiness under subjection. Happily there are many housekeepers who do not regard their part as a small degree.

If the housekeeper is not big enough to regard her part as a small degree, the male members of her house as important, the caring for her children as the thing nearest her heart, and even the menial part of the work as her contribution to the greater development of the race, I fear her influence out in the great outside world referred to would be small indeed.

Personally I prefer the abolition of being "the power behind the throne." Every one knows that clear thinking and sound judgment depend largely upon a good digestion. If every housekeeper could make sure of developing sturdy children, reserve power and strength for the household, and go along with that produce an air of ease and comfort in the home which would counteract the trials of the day, making the evening a time of peace and content, what reasonable judge could call such a life petty?

Instead of crying down "house service" let us try to cultivate the greater feeling of pride in our service.

GIFT OF LANGUAGE.

Advantages of the Man Who Is Able to Talk Well.

There is no other one thing which enables us to make so good an impression, especially upon those who do not know us thoroughly, as the ability to converse well. A man who can talk well, who has the art of putting things in an attractive way, who can interest others humbly by his power of speech, has a very great advantage over one who may know more than he, but who cannot express himself with ease or eloquence.

You may be a good singer, a fine artist, you may have a great many accomplishments which people occasionally see or enjoy, you may have a very beautiful home and a lot of property, which comparatively few people ever know about, but if you are a good converser every one you meet recognizes and appreciates your art. Everybody who converses with you feels the influence of your skill and charm.

To other words, there is no accomplishment so attainable, which you can use so constantly and effectively which will give so much pleasure to your friends as fine conversation. There is no doubt that the gift of language was intended to be a much greater accomplishment than the majority of us have ever made of it.—Orison Sweet Garden in Success Magazine.

A Strenuous Worker.

"The Resemblance of Blomark," contains an account of his childhood. He was a young Swedish officer when he first met Johann von Patkau's, but he made application at once to her father for permission to pay his addresses. Johann at Blomark's proposal, the old gentleman did not absolutely decline it. Instead he wrote giving permission to pay a sort of "visit of inspection" at the Patkau house. Blomark intended to Reinhold. The whole Patkau family was lined up to greet him. The father and mother glared at him solemnly, and Johann himself stood between them, her eyes cast modestly downward. With the swift, lightning decision that scored Blomark his later political triumphs, he carried the situation by storm. Galloping up the driveway, he leaped from his horse, ran forward and flung his arms around Johann, taking heed of her scandalized parents and catching her to his breast and covering her blushing face with kisses. After that there could be no talk of "probation" or "waiting." The betrothal was necessarily an accepted fact.

If YOU ever find happiness by hunting for it you will find it, as the old woman did her spectacles, safe on her own nose all the time.—Josh Billings.

THE END APPROACHING.

It is apparent that the debate on the tariff bill in the Senate is approaching rapidly its end. Washington has ceased to be a pleasant place of residence. The Senators are showing unmistakable signs of irritation and loss of temper. The nerves of everybody in the Capitol are in constant evidence. Oratory becomes a task and not a pleasant pastime for the orator.

Summer resorts, Europe and the summer school platforms await the completion of the legislative work, and their calls become sweeter and more insistent as the mercury climbs in the tubes along the Potomac. Families have a word or so to say. The children must be got into the country. Schools are closing, and the young folks must be looked after while they recuperate from their severe labors at the desk and under the midnight electric globe. It is high time to be off from Washington.

What the manufacturers, the merchants, the traders have not been able to do, the weather clerk will accomplish. He will force through a tariff measure, write it on the books and send the members of Congress back to their homes, where the whole business community devoutly wishes them to be.—New York Sun.

GOOD ROADS IN BRECKENRIDGE.

The Kentucky Good Roads Convention has issued a circular letter calling attention to the fact that the Bosworth-Wyatt good roads amendment to the Constitution of Kentucky will be submitted to a vote of the people at the next November election.

The amendment, if adopted, will give the county the power to issue bonds and levy taxes for the building of county roads. It would prepare the way for a general improvement of the roads in all of the counties of Kentucky.

The good roads work in Breckenridge county has just fairly begun. Our people are just beginning to realize that good roads are the most important factor in the prosperity of its citizens. What we need is more money to carry on the good work. This amendment will give us a chance to sell bonds and secure money at a low rate of interest to build good metal roads, which are the only roads for this county.

Wheat, corn and tobacco are all reported in fine condition, and above the average. Wheat, which was thought two weeks ago to be almost a failure, has developed wonderfully and will be near an average crop. All crops are looking thrifty, clear of weeds and in fine growing condition. Things look prosperous for the farmers.

The tobacco crop is about all set in this county. Everybody says it is a bumper crop too. What the farmers want to do now is to bump their heads together for a bumper price. If they don't do it, they ought to be bumped with a good big bumper—one that will raise a good big knot on their craniums.

The Hawesville Clarion says: "Dick Owen is the logical candidate for the State Senate." We agree with the Clarion. And he is the only man who can carry the Democrats to victory in Breckenridge county. Some Democrats might paste this in their hat and watch our prediction.

Millers in Owensboro are offering $1 and $1.10 for new wheat. The $1.10 price is for delivery in ten days after cutting.

Howdy! howdy! howdy! Why not get into the Shriner spirit.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by a local application of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running ear and imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed for ever, and no cure can be effected by any means.

We will give the Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by the Catarrh Cure. Sent for circular free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Cincinnati, O.

CATARRH DESTROYED MY APPETITE.

PERUNA rarely fails to restore the appetite. Immediately after taking the use of Peruna patients begin to eat and digest. This is the universal testimony, coming from all parts of the civilized world.

Catarrh is a very frequent cause of loss of appetite and disturbed digestion. The beneficial influence of Peruna on catarrh completely restores the appetite in such cases.

To prod the digestive organs with medicines that are merely stimulants is a poor way to remedy such cases.

"I am now cured and cheerful in spirit, all through the agency of Peruna, which has cured me effectively and restored my appetite."
"My only regret is that I did not use Peruna sooner and I would have avoided all my previous suffering and misery."
—Mr. Joseph H. Conlan.

Removed Catarrh, Restored Appetite.

Mr. Joseph H. Conlan, 487 7th Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I suffered from catarrh which completely destroyed my appetite and weakened my entire system. I am now cured and cheerful in spirit, all through the agency of Peruna, which has cured me effectively and restored my appetite. My only regret is that I did not use Peruna sooner and I would have avoided all my previous suffering and misery."

Torpid Liver, Stomach Trouble.
Mr. James O'Byrne, 638 Madison St., Toledo, Kas., conductor Santa Fe Railway and member Order of Railway Conductors, writes: "I suffered with a torpid liver and stomach trouble, which made my complexion very sallow, and I felt miserable and tired all the time. An aunt wrote me that she was taking Peruna with such good results that she advised me to try it, and I finally bought a bottle, although I disliked to take patent medicines. However, I found Peruna very agreeable to take, and effective, as I felt better in a week. I took only five bottles in all and I found that was all I needed. I am most grateful to you for what your medicine has done for me."

Dyspepsia Entirely Relieved.
Mr. N. N. Casey, Lexington, Ill., writes: "Two weeks after beginning your treatment I was well. I used nine bottores of Peruna. My case was howsoever trouble or dyspepsia. I also tried Peruna for a cough, according to directions, and it exceeds any cough syrup I ever used. I wish every one afflicted would give Peruna a trial."

Peruna as a Tonic.
Capt. R. B. Smith, Greenboro, Ga., writes: "After using several bottles of Peruna I can recommend it as one of the best catarrh medicines on the market. As a tonic it has no equal."

"Peruna is all that is claimed for it."

Catarrh of Stomach.
Mr. Henry Neely, First Lieutenant, Co. "F," 8th Regiment, O. V. I., Box 625, Trenton, Mo., writes: "I suffered for years with catarrh of the stomach. Seeing an advertisement of Peruna, I bought a bottle and every dose made me feel better. Seven bottles completely cured me."

turned off by a machine, but is doing very nicely at present.

Mrs. James Bollen spent Thursday in the city on a shopping tour.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Hook and little daughter, Mary Franklin, left last week for an indefinite visit to Mrs. Hook's parents, Mr. and Mrs. DeJarnett.

The Logical Candidate.

Chronicles of the Zotwots

From Uncle Remus—The Home Magazine for April

THE UNKIND MAIDEN LADY

Verse and Picture by R. J. DEAN.

This maiden lady old

A neighbor's child upon her knee.

A Zotwot, quick as a snap,

Scrambled up into her lap.

And snuggled for hours so peacefully

That the lady grew tired

And almost expired—

But now she's as kind as can be!

P. S.

Now, the Jay-fowl never does forget
The things the Zotwots do.
For the Jay-fowl is the Zotwots' pet,
And the Zotwots know it, too.

The Zotwots, as everybody knows, or should know, are an amiable people who come from the land of Aroundabout, and are the especial friends of children. They make it their duty to see that young folks are not imposed upon by grumpy old folks, and in their laudable efforts they are assisted, nobly and quickly, by the Jay-Fowl—the sedate and soulful Jay-Fowl, who is the Zotwots' pet. And he knows it. (See verse for confirmation of this.)

POLLY of the CIRCUS

In, same as me," Hasty answered innocently. "You'd better take Hasty into the kitchen," said Douglas to Mandy, with a dry smile. "He's talking too much for a wounded man."

Mandy disappeared with the disgraced Hasty, advising him, with fine scorn, to get to bed. "He's clawing off his legs, so he wouldn't have to walk no mo'."

The women gazed at each other with lips closed tightly. Every other behavior was beyond their power of expression. Miss Perkins turned to the pastor as though he were somehow to blame for the deacon's buckling, but before she could find words to argue the point the little timid deacon appeared in the doorway, utterly unconscious of the deacon's buckling, and Hasty had prepared for him. He glanced nervously from one set face to the other, then coughed behind his hat.

"We're all very much interested in the circus," said Douglas. "Can't you tell us about it?"

"I just went into the lot to look for my son," stammered the deacon. "I feared Peter had strayed."

"Why, deacon?" said Mrs. Douglas. "I just stopped by to see your house and saw Mrs. Elverson putting Peter to bed."

The deacon was saved from further embarrassment by an exclamation from Julia, who had stayed at the window. "Oh, look; something has happened!" she cried. "There's a crowd. They are coming this way."

Douglas crossed quickly to Julia's side and saw an excited mob collecting before the entrance to the main hall. He had time to discover no more before Mandy burst in at the door, panting with excitement and rolling her large, white rimmed eyes.

"Mrs. Jola, a little circus girl done fall off her horse!" she cried. "Hasty say can dey bring her in here?"

"Of course," said Douglas, hurrying outside.

There were horrified exclamations from the women, who were agitated at the idea of a circus rider in the parsonage. In their helpless indignation they turned upon the little deacon, feeling intuitively that he was enjoying the drama. Elverson was retreating toward the door when he was suddenly thrust aside by Douglas.

In the young pastor's arms was a white, shivering burden of humanity. Her slender arm hung lifeless over his shoulder. The silk stocking was torn from one bruised ankle; her hair fell across her face, veiling it from the unfriendly glances of the women. Douglas had passed out of sight up the stairs without looking to the right or left, followed by the deacon, who was standing on the threshold was a clown in his grotesque make-up. His white clothes were partially concealed by a single traveling suit held together by one button. In one hand he carried a small leather satchel. In the other a girl's sailor hat. A little tin case was thrown across his arm. The glances of the boy hiding behind his mother's skirt were the only greetings received by the trembling old man in the doorway.

He glanced uncertainly from one unfriendly face to the other, waiting for a word of invitation to enter, but none came.

"Excuse me," he said. "I just brought some of her little things. She'd better put on her coat when she goes out. It's getting kinder chilly."

He looked again at the women's blank faces. One one spoke. He stepped forward, trembling with anxiety. A sudden fear clutched at his heart, the muscles of his face began to quiver, the red painted lips began to quiver.

"It ain't—it ain't that, is it?" he faltered, unable to utter the word that filled him with horror.

Even Miss Perkins was momentarily touched by the anguish in the old

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this city most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the thickening of the blood will attack the vital organs, causing entanglements of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scaling pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go out through the day, and to set up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You need not buy a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, but sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

"It ain't—it ain't that, is it?" he faltered, unable to utter the word that filled him with horror.

Even Miss Perkins was momentarily touched by the anguish in the old seeing desperation written on their faces.

"Here?" They looked at him incredulously. And this was a pastor.

"Where are her parents?" the doctor asked, looking at Jim and Toby.

"She ain't got no parents," said Toby, and he replied Jim, "You've took care of her ever since she was a baby."

"Oh, I see," said the doctor. "Well, one of you'd better stay here until she can be moved."

"That's the trouble. We can't," said Toby, hanging his head. "You see, sir, circus folks is like soldiers. No matter what happens, the show has to go on, an' we got to be in our places."

"Oh, I see," said the doctor. "It is a fortunate thing that Mr. Douglas can manage this. Our town hospital burned down a few months ago, and we've been rather puzzled as to what to do with such cases." He took his leave, with a cheery "Good night."

He promised to look in upon the little tent later. Jim shuffled awkwardly toward the pastor.

"It's mighty good of you to do this," he mumbled. "But she ain't got to be no charity patient. Me an' Toby is goin' to look after her keep."

"Her wants will be very few," Douglas answered kindly. "You needn't trouble about that."

"I mean it," said Jim savagely. He met Douglas' glance of surprise with a determined look, for he feared that his chance of being useful to Toby might be slipping out of his life.

"You mustn't mind Jim," the clown pleaded at the pastor's elbow. "You see, both gets some folks different from others, an' it always kinder makes him savage."

"Oh, that's all right," Douglas answered quickly. His own life lived so longely that he could understand the selfish yearning in the big man's heart. "You must do what you think best about these things. Mandy and I will look after the rest."

Jim hung his head, feeling somehow that the pastor had seen straight into his heart and discovered his petty weakness. He was about to turn toward the door when it was thrown open by Barker.

"Where is she?" shouted the manager, looking from one to the other.

"She can't come," said Jim in a low, steady voice, for he knew the storm of opposition with which Barker would meet the announcement.

"Can't come?" shrieked Barker. "Of course she can't come. She can't get along without her. She's got to come." He looked at Jim, who remained silent and firm. "Why ain't she come?" he asked, feeling himself already defeated.

"She's hurt bad," was Jim's laconic reply.

"The devil she is!" said Barker, looking at Douglas for confirmation.

"Is that right?"

"She won't be able to travel for some time," said Douglas.

"Mr. Barker is our manager," Toby explained as he edged his way to the pastor's side.

"Some time?" Barker looked at Douglas as though he were to blame for their misfortune. "Well, you just bet she will," he declared megalomaniacally.

"See here, Barker, don't you talk to him like that," said Jim, facing the manager. "He's a darned square, even if he is a parson." Barker turned away. He was not a bad hearted man, but he was irritated and upset at losing the star feature of his bill.

"Ain't this my doggedest luck?" he muttered to himself as his eye again traveled to the lone circusman. "You get out of here, Jim," he shouted, "an' start them wagons. The show's got to go on. Toll or no toll!"

He turned with his hand on the doorknob and jerked out a grudging thanks to the pastor. "It's all fixed good of you to take her in," he said. "I'm tough to love her. Good night!" He banged the door and clattered down the steps.

Jim waited. He was trying to find words in which to tell his gratitude. He crossed the room and took the bell fellow's hand.

"Much obliged," Jim answered gruffly. "It was his only polite phrase, and he had taught Toby to say it. Douglas waited until Jim had passed down the steps, then turned to Toby, who still lingered near the table.

"You'll tell her how it was me an' Jim had to leave her without any pygmy, won't you, sir?" Toby pleaded.

"Yes, indeed," Douglas promised.

"I'll put this little bit of money into her satchel." He picked up the little brown bag that was to have been Toby's birthday gift. "Me an' Jim will be sendin' her more soon."

"You're going to miss her, I'm afraid," Douglas said, feeling an irresistible desire to gain the old man's confidence.

"Lord bless you, yes, sir!" Toby pleaded, turning upon him eagerly. "Me an' Jim has been father an' mother to an' Jes' about everything to that little one. She wasn't much bigger'n a handful of peanuts when we begun 'em." "Well, Mandy will do the worrying now," Douglas laughed. "She's been dying for a chance to mother some body all along. Why, she even tried it on me."

"I noticed as how some of those circus people seemed to look kinder queer at us," said Toby. "An' I been a wonderin' if maybe they might feel the same about her."

"Oh, they're all right!" Douglas assured him. "They'll be her friends in no time."

"She's fit for 'em, sir," Toby pleaded. "She's good, clean into the middle of her heart."

"I'm sure of it," Douglas answered.
